Mike,

I agree with what you wrote. To expand on this step:

"Create W/O to reidentify a D5759-041 to a 78620-01"

Route DD / IFS

This work order should reference AD dwg 78620, which is a current approved dwg. D5759-041 will be picked and inspected to dwg 78620. Engineering will create a deviation saying it's acceptable to produce a 78620-01 from D5759-041 and will identify any minor difference as minor.

Hey Team,

This situation arose before we had the opportunity to complete a test run of the merged Dart / AD engineering deviation process. I think this is a good opportunity to test the scenario.

The second kit needs to also be supplied to the customer as P/N 78602-02-02 Beam Installation with AD paperwork only.

The P/N 78602-02-02 Beam Installation kit will comprise of the following:

Hey,

I just got off of the phone with Jeff from Aero Design.

They have a typo in their documentation, 78634-01-00 was revised to 78635-01-00 and the drawing never got updated to reflect this....

The parts are good to ship with the ARC's Linda shared.

Regards,

Mike

Now we are totally confused..

We found the 76401-02-02, pulled it down, inside we have the 78620-01 clamps (with the hardware mentioned below)
78633-01-02 aft beam
But instead of the 78634-01-00, we have 78635-01-00
And the certs match this, but the the ARC does not match the basket – pls see attached

Linda & Caitlin,

Can you please confirm that the customer wants AS350 Fixed Provision, Standard, Left Hand. (D350-1080-111 or 78602-XX-02)

If that is the case we need to disassemble an Aero Design Kit in stock to provide the customer with the components they require

Hey Caitlin & Linda,

All Aero Design stock is currently indicated in Plex (under the top level P/N).

If I understand correctly, the 78602-02-02 Beam Installation needs to be shown in Plex inventory before it can be added to a sales order.

Mike

So is the D350-1080-013 the 76401-02-02 or 76401-03-02 ? these are stk
As for the D5759-1 it is 78620-02 – no stk, approx. another 4wks

Hi Linda

I am going to have to get the customer to buy the AD part vs our part as they want the piece ASAP.

Thanks
Caitlin
